Leadership Advisory & Organizational Effectiveness

SECTION 1

Organization Snapshot

Legal Name	FleetPride, Inc.
Headquarters	Las Colinas (Irving), Texas
Founded	1999

Ownership

Private, dual PE-backed - American Securities (majority owner, acquired FleetPride) and Platinum Equity (brought TruckPro into the merger). Mark Lovett (American Securities Managing Director) serves as Board Chair.

Footprint

450+ locations across the United States and Canada, including 110+ service centers and 6 distribution centers. Concentrated in major trucking corridors and metropolitan areas. Houston, Dallas, and San Antonio presence strengthened by 2025 OTR Fleet Service acquisition.

SECTION 1b

Company Overview

FleetPride is the largest independent distributor of heavy-duty truck and trailer parts in North America, operating 450+ locations and 110+ service centers. Formed through the October 2025 merger of FleetPride and TruckPro under dual PE ownership (American Securities and Platinum Equity), the combined company serves commercial fleets, independent repair shops, and dealerships with parts, service, and technical support.

SECTION 2

Financial Health & Growth Stage

Understanding FleetPride's financial position and trajectory is critical to framing any engagement conversation.

Estimated ~$3B combined revenue (some sources cite up to $5B post-merger). Moody's noted 'improving operating margin' and expects high-single-digit revenue growth, with EBITDA margin increasing slightly. However, leverage remains elevated at ~6x debt/EBITDA - Moody's previously flagged 'very high leverage, low interest coverage, and weak liquidity attributed to ongoing negative free cash flow.' Debt was restructured in late 2025 with OHA (T. Rowe Price) leading private financing to support the merger. Moody's subsequently withdrew its rating after debt repayment and assigned a stable outlook. The financial picture is stabilizing but still fragile - the integration must deliver cost synergies and revenue growth to service the debt load. PE owners will be focused on a 3 - 5 year exit timeline, which creates urgency for operational improvement and EBITDA expansion.

SECTION 3

Leadership Team Profiles

The following contacts are recommended as primary outreach targets - champion-level leaders who feel the organizational pain daily and can sponsor McChrystal internally.

Tom Greco - Chief Executive Officer [PRIORITY TARGET]

40+ years Fortune 500 leadership. CEO of Advance Auto Parts (2016 - 2023), where he led a multi-year transformation delivering 5 consecutive years of comparable sales growth. Previously CEO of Frito-Lay North America (PepsiCo) for 30+ years. MBA from Richard Ivey School of Business (Western University). Public company board experience.

> Outreach rationale: Economic buyer and decision-maker. New CEO leading the most consequential integration in the company's history. His transformation track record at Advance Auto Parts and stated focus on people-and-culture-first integration aligns directly with McChrystal capabilities. He has the mandate, the budget authority, and a proven appetite for organizational change.

Additional leadership team members relevant to the engagement:

Chuck Broadus - President, TruckPro Division

Operator with deep heavy-duty aftermarket experience. Led TruckPro through Platinum Equity ownership period and growth to 150+ locations.

Mark Lovett - Board Chair (Managing Director, American Securities)

Private equity. Managing Director at American Securities, one of FleetPride's two PE owners.

SECTION 4

Organizational Culture & Structure

Culture and structure are often where McChrystal Group finds the deepest leverage. The following signals indicate how FleetPride operates today and where friction exists.

Organizational Structure

Historically hierarchical, branch-based distribution model. Post-merger, FleetPride operates a dual-track structure: Tom Greco as CEO with Chuck Broadus leading the TruckPro division reporting to him. The 450+ location footprint is inherently decentralized operationally but has traditionally been managed with centralized control from headquarters - a tension that the merger will amplify.

Culture Signals

Glassdoor rating of 2.4/5 (based on 316 reviews) with only 21% of employees recommending the company - a significant red flag. Key themes in employee reviews: 'Executive leadership is a nightmare,' 'You feel like a number here, there is no company culture,' 'Nepotism runs rampant,' 'No work-life balance,' and 'They like to micromanage.' Work-life balance rated 2.2/5, culture and values 2.2/5, career opportunities 2.3/5. These scores reflect the pre-Greco, pre-merger FleetPride - but they represent the cultural baseline that must be transformed. The TruckPro workforce brings its own distinct culture, creating a two-cultures-colliding dynamic. Greco's stated focus on people-first integration suggests he recognizes the culture deficit. [INFERRED] The blue-collar, distributed workforce (branch managers, mechanics, parts counter staff) requires a culture change approach that works at the frontline level - not just C-suite workshops. McChrystal's methodology is well-suited to this.

SECTION 5

Recent News & Trigger Events

The following developments from the past 18 months create urgency and provide natural conversation entry points for engaging FleetPride.

1. 2025-07-23 - Tom Greco appointed CEO, replacing interim CEO Stefan Crafton

New CEO with transformation DNA brings a mandate for change and a fresh perspective on organizational design. First 12 months are the prime window for advisory relationships.

2. 2025-10-28 - FleetPride - TruckPro merger completed, creating largest independent HD aftermarket distributor

Massive integration challenge: 450+ locations, 6,500+ employees, two distinct cultures, overlapping geographies. Classic McChrystal engagement - building shared consciousness across a newly combined, distributed organization.

3. 2025-11-03 - OHA (T. Rowe Price) leads private debt financing to support the FleetPride - TruckPro merger

Significant debt restructuring - Moody's noted 'very high leverage' and debt/EBITDA near 6x. Financial pressure means the integration must deliver results quickly; failed integration = existential risk.

4. 2025-03-01 - FleetPride acquires OTR Fleet Service LLC (Houston-based, 3 service centers, 30+ mobile units)

Continued acquisitive growth even before TruckPro merger - signals integration is a recurring challenge, not a one-time event.

5. 2026-02-01 - CEO Tom Greco delivers keynote at Heavy Duty Aftermarket Dialogue 2026

Greco is publicly positioning himself as a thought leader in the industry transformation. Public visibility creates outreach opportunities through shared platform appearances or post-event follow-up.

6. None - Moody's withdraws ratings after FleetPride repays concerning debt; assigns stable outlook with 'improving operating margin'

Financial stabilization post-restructuring means FleetPride has breathing room to invest in organizational capability - but the high leverage (6x debt/EBITDA) means every dollar spent must show returns. McChrystal engagements can be framed as integration insurance.

7. None - Heavy-duty aftermarket industry facing tariff pressures, digital transformation, and electrification shifts in 2025 - 2026

Industry-wide disruption compounds internal integration challenges. FleetPride must simultaneously integrate TruckPro AND adapt to structural market changes - the kind of VUCA environment where McChrystal's framework is most compelling.

SECTION 6

McChrystal Fit Assessment

FleetPride presents a compelling engagement opportunity: new transformation CEO + massive post-merger integration + distributed frontline workforce + high financial leverage creating urgency. Greco's public statements about people-first integration align perfectly with McChrystal's methodology. The primary risk is PE budget sensitivity, but the integration stakes are high enough that a well-framed proposal (integration insurance, not discretionary consulting) should resonate.

Primary Problem

Post-merger integration of two large, geographically distributed organizations with distinct cultures, overlapping operations, and a frontline-heavy workforce - all under significant financial leverage and with a new CEO who must establish authority quickly.

Best McChrystal Capability Fit

Team of Teams operating model implementation. FleetPride's challenge is textbook McChrystal: a newly combined organization with 450+ locations needs to build shared consciousness, break down legacy silos (FleetPride vs. TruckPro), and empower distributed frontline leaders to execute autonomously while staying aligned. Greco's stated philosophy that integration 'starts with people and culture' is the exact entry point for McChrystal's approach.

Likely Objections to Engagement

PE owners (American Securities + Platinum Equity) may resist advisory spend given high leverage (6x debt/EBITDA) - must frame as integration risk mitigation and EBITDA protection, not discretionary consulting

FleetPride may already have integration consultants from PE firms' preferred vendor lists (McKinsey, Bain, AlixPartners) - McChrystal needs to differentiate on culture/leadership vs. operational/financial integration

Greco's 40+ years of Fortune 500 experience may make him skeptical of outside advisors - need to position McChrystal as a peer-level partner, not a typical consultancy

Heavy-duty auto parts distribution may feel 'too blue collar' for McChrystal's brand - but the distributed frontline workforce and high-stakes operating environment (fleet downtime = customer revenue loss) are actually ideal fit factors

Competitive Advisory Landscape

McKinsey Organization Practice - PE firms often default to McKinsey for post-merger integration; however, McKinsey's approach is typically top-down and analytical, not culture-first

Bain & Company - strong PE relationships (both American Securities and Platinum Equity are Bain clients); likely has existing relationship for deal diligence

AlixPartners - common PE-backed integration advisor, but focused on operational/financial restructuring, not leadership and culture

Korn Ferry - could compete on leadership assessment and executive coaching; lacks McChrystal's operating model and team-based transformation methodology

Internal PE operating partners - both American Securities and Platinum Equity have operating teams that may be driving integration priorities

SECTION 7

Conversation Entry Points

These questions are designed for a Senior Partner's first conversation. Each opens a thread that naturally leads to McChrystal Group's capabilities without a direct pitch.

1. You've said publicly that the FleetPride - TruckPro integration has to start with people and culture, not spreadsheets. Eight months in, what's been the hardest part of getting 6,500 people across 450 locations to feel like one team?

Validate Greco's stated philosophy, then pivot to McChrystal's experience building shared consciousness in large, distributed organizations that were forced to integrate quickly (JSOC parallel).

2. With dual PE ownership and significant leverage, how are you thinking about the balance between integration speed and getting the culture right - especially when every quarter matters to your board?

Acknowledge the financial pressure without being presumptuous. Position McChrystal as having helped organizations accelerate integration timelines without sacrificing cultural alignment - integration speed as a competitive advantage, not a tradeoff.

3. The heavy-duty aftermarket is facing tariff disruptions, electrification shifts, and digital transformation all at once. How is FleetPride building the organizational agility to absorb those external shocks while simultaneously integrating TruckPro?

Frame the VUCA environment - FleetPride faces both internal complexity (integration) and external disruption (market shifts). McChrystal's Team of Teams model was built for exactly this kind of compound uncertainty.

Recommended Meeting Framing

Position as a peer-level conversation about leading large-scale integration in distributed, frontline-heavy organizations. Lead with the JSOC parallel: General McChrystal faced the same challenge of unifying disparate units with distinct cultures into a single, cohesive force capable of moving faster than the threat environment. Avoid 'consulting pitch' framing - Greco has 40 years of experience and will reject anything that feels generic. Offer a specific, concrete insight about post-merger culture integration (e.g., a 90-day shared consciousness accelerator) rather than a broad capabilities overview. If possible, reference a specific PE-backed integration McChrystal has supported.

SECTION 8

Brand Insights & Market Positioning

Brand strategy reveals organizational priorities and coordination challenges. The following analysis connects FleetPride's market positioning to potential McChrystal engagement opportunities.

Brand Value & Competitive Standing: FleetPride is the largest independent distributor of heavy-duty truck and trailer parts in the U.S., operating 300+ locations nationwide. The brand stands for availability, expertise, and fleet uptime - critical values for trucking and fleet operators where downtime equals lost revenue. FleetPride competes against OEM dealer networks (PACCAR, Daimler Trucks), national chains (Genuine Parts/NAPA Heavy Duty), and regional independents.

Brand Identity Evolution: FleetPride has been through multiple PE ownership cycles (most recently American Industrial Partners). The merger with Parts Authority (a major competitor/complementary distributor) is the most significant brand event - combining two recognized names in heavy-duty parts distribution into a single platform.

Marketing Leadership & Strategy: [INFERRED] B2B marketing focused on fleet maintenance managers and independent repair shops. Key channels: trade shows (HDAW, TMC), fleet management publications, and local market relationships. The merged entity's marketing must unify two brand identities and customer bases.

Brand Threats: OEM direct-to-fleet parts programs bypassing independent distributors. E-commerce platforms enabling direct parts procurement. Post-merger brand confusion as customers navigate the combined entity.

McChrystal Connection: FleetPride's brand promise of "keeping fleets running" requires operational coordination across 300+ locations - parts availability, delivery speed, and technical expertise must be consistent whether a fleet operator visits a legacy FleetPride location or a legacy Parts Authority location. McChrystal's operating model ensures the merged operation delivers a unified experience.

SECTION 9

Deep McChrystal Group Fit Analysis

This is the strategic case for pursuing FleetPride. It synthesizes findings from all previous sections into a comprehensive engagement thesis with specific fit dimensions, expected outcomes, stakeholder mapping, and a phased pursuit strategy.

9a. Fit Dimensions

Fit Dimension 1: Post-Merger Integration of Distributed Operations

Merging two large, geographically distributed parts distributors (300+ locations) requires standardizing inventory systems, pricing, vendor relationships, and customer service - all while maintaining the local market expertise that customers depend on. McChrystal's Team of Teams connects 300+ autonomous locations into a coordinated network without destroying local responsiveness.

Fit Dimension 2: Frontline Workforce Alignment

Heavy-duty parts distribution is a frontline-heavy business - counter salespeople, delivery drivers, and warehouse workers determine customer experience. Organizational transformation must reach the frontline, not just corporate. McChrystal's operating model extends to every level of the organization - not just the C-suite.

Fit Dimension 3: PE Value Creation Under Leverage

American Industrial Partners' ownership means aggressive value creation targets under significant financial leverage. Every integration decision must demonstrate ROI. McChrystal's lean operating model delivers organizational effectiveness without expensive technology implementations.

9b. Cumulative Case

FleetPride is a classic PE roll-up at the integration inflection point - two large distributed operations that must become one while delivering value creation under leverage. Signal chain: PE acquisition -> Parts Authority merger -> 300+ locations -> overlapping operations -> frontline-heavy workforce -> financial leverage -> value creation pressure. Revenue potential: $250K initial, $600K-$800K deployment, $200K ongoing. Total: $1M-$1.5M.

9c. Enterprise Issues

1. Overlapping Location Rationalization: Where FleetPride and Parts Authority locations serve the same market, decisions about consolidation affect employees, customers, and vendor relationships. 2. System Integration: Two inventory management systems, two pricing engines, two customer databases must merge without disrupting daily operations at 300+ locations. 3. Vendor Contract Consolidation: Combining purchasing power requires renegotiating supplier contracts - a coordination challenge across two previously independent procurement teams. 4. Frontline Culture Merge: Counter salespeople at legacy FleetPride and legacy Parts Authority locations have different operating norms, customer relationships, and brand loyalty. Unifying the frontline culture determines customer retention. 5. Financial Leverage Constraints: Debt load limits investment in integration - must be executed lean and fast.

9d. Expected Outcomes

1. Unified Operations Cadence: Single operating rhythm across 300+ locations. Measurable: inventory availability rates equalized across legacy entities within 6 months. 2. Location Rationalization: Overlapping locations consolidated without customer loss. Measurable: customer retention >95% in rationalized markets. 3. Procurement Synergy Capture: Unified vendor negotiations. Measurable: procurement cost savings targets achieved within first year. 4. Frontline Alignment: Consistent customer experience across all locations. Measurable: customer satisfaction scores converging within 6 months.

9f. Opportunity Thesis

Why Now: Post-merger integration is underway - the first 12 months determine whether synergies are captured or integration debt accumulates. McChrystal engagement in the first 6 months maximizes value.

Why McChrystal, Not McKinsey: Integration-specific firms handle deal-level PMI. McKinsey advises on distribution strategy. But aligning 300+ frontline-heavy locations into a unified operation requires the decentralized coordination model McChrystal pioneered. No consulting firm matches this capability for distributed operations.

Phased Engagement: Phase 1 ($200K-$300K): Integration operating model for 300+ locations. Phase 2 ($400K-$500K): Frontline alignment, procurement coordination. Phase 3 ($200K retainer): Ongoing value creation management. Total: $800K-$1M.

Multi-Threaded Pursuit: COO (frontline operations), VP Integration (merger execution), PE sponsor (value creation).
